

I am utterly upset at the fact that anyone could even begin to think that satellite radio should be limited to what they can and cannot broadcast over the air, does anyone limit what satellite cable can broadcast? has anyone ever told directv, dishnetwork, or any of these companies that they are no longer able to broadcast the weather channel...?

I would hope if legislation came out preventing any form of speech and broadcast from XM, that it would be limited to every other broadcaster in this world also.

Its a shame that the greatest technology cars have seen (and homes) in 20 years is now being attacked by the FCC.
